DESIGNER REVIEW

Welcome to our Designer feedback and review.

This person walks in the shoes of their audience

- They keep simple things simple while enabling users to achieve their goals.
- They iterate their work to make it simpler and better.

This person knows how to define the goals of their project

- They think about the growth of a product when working through a problem.
- They take the time to research and understand the problem they're trying to solve.
- They think of their design and code with a long-term and large-scale view.
- They design for real life and considers a wide range of context and scenarios.
- They go beyond just the way things look.

DESIGNER REVIEW

This person is inspired by trends, but not limited or defined by them

- They are a generalist with broad knowledge in many fields but with an intense focus on design and front-end development.
- They don't blindly copy the processes and technology choices of large industry leaders..

This person is open to collaborate with anyone in the organisation

- They work with the customer success team to understand the needs of customers.
- They work with developers to ensure nothing gets lost in translation during implementation.
- They keep development limitations in mind but work with developers to overcome them if needed.
- They don't take criticism personally.
- They work with feedback from customers or their team even if it might feel negative or disrupt their process.

DESIGNER REVIEW

This person iterates and adapts a design guided by their own standards of quality and peer feedback.

- They make sure new UI and code are consistent with the rest of the application.
- They test their work against different use cases and states.
- They don't elevate form to the detriment of function.
